dMAT for graduate students in India (APS verification process)

The digital Master Test (dMAT) is a standardised academic aptitude test for graduate students. From 2026 on, the dMAT will be introduced as a new additional element into the APS documentation and verification process for Indian graduates wishing to apply for a graduate programme (Master level) in Germany.

Who needs to take the dMAT?

In its introductory phase in 2026, the new dMAT requirement will apply exclusively to applicants whose undergraduate degree is in one of the following fields:

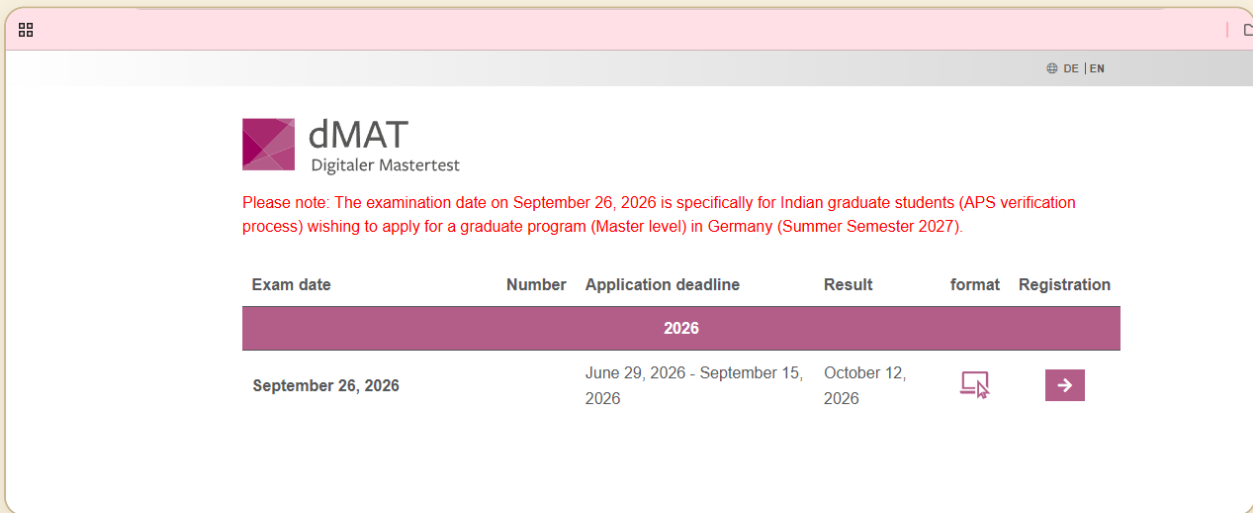

- Engineering
- Commerce, Accounting, Finance, Economics
- Business / Management

Applicants whose degree falls within one of these areas with the aim to take up studies in a graduate programme in Germany in summer semester 2027 or thereafter, are required to take dMAT with the General Academic Module as part of the APS documentation process.
